Pedro Hurtado

PhD in Economics · University of Chile

phurtado@fen.uchile.cl pedrohurtado.net

RESEARCH INTERESTS

Machine Learning, Political Economy, Development Economics, Causal Inference, Program Evaluation.

EDUCATION

Ph.D. in Economics 2026
University of Chile

B.A. in Business and Economics 2009
University of Chile First in class

B.A. in Music Interpretation 2013
Royal Conservatoire of Music of Madrid

WORKING PAPERS

Target Smarter, Not Harder: Efficiency Gains in Micro-entrepreneurship Programs by Using Machine Learning

Applies causal forests and policy learning to a six-country RCT (Banerjee et al., 2015) to show that data-driven targeting can improve welfare gains up to 6.7× relative to random allocation.

Constitutional Content and Economic Growth

Uses a balanced panel of 57 countries (1961–2018) to estimate how specific constitutional provisions—central bank authority, free-competition guarantees, and property-rights protections—affect long-run GDP per capita growth at different time horizons.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Research Assistant Oct 2023 – Sep 2025
National Fund for Research and Development, Prof. Jaime Ruiz-Tagle

Consultant Oct 2021 – Jul 2022
United Nations, ECLAC

Research Assistant Feb – May 2021; Jan – Aug 2025
Prof. Ricardo Ffrench-Davis (National Award in Social Sciences)

Research Manager Sep 2019 – Present
University of Chile, Faculty of Economics and Business

TEACHING

Microeconomics for Public Policy · Master in Public Policy, Universidad de Chile 2022, 2023, 2024

Inequality, Poverty and Social Policy · Master in Public Policy, Universidad de Chile 2022–2023

AWARDS & SCHOLARSHIPS

Full Scholarship for PhD – National Research and Development Agency of Chile (ANID) 2020
First Ranking of Promotion – B.A. Business and Economics, University of Chile 2009

TECHNICAL SKILLS

Programming: R, Python, Matlab, Stata, LaTeX
AI & LLMs: LLM-assisted research and coding workflows (Claude, ChatGPT, Claude Code, Codex); LLM-based text analysis and NLP
Languages: Spanish (Native), English (Fluent)